RANDOLPH

Death of Mrs. B. E. Nickerson in Vancouver, B. C., Recently.

Col. Chandler and his son, Willis Chandler, accompanied by Dr. J. P. Gifford, left on Monday night for Saranac, N. Y., where Willis Chandler will remain for some time for the benefit of his health. Dr. Gifford will be absent about one week only and while there will study the methods of treatment for tuberculosis adopted in that section.

Miss Sadie Fifield, who is taking a few days' vacation from her duties in the drug store of V. A. Grant, went to Bethel on Monday night and on Tuesday she with her sister, Mrs. Lewis Whitney, went to Williamstown for a few days' visit with their mother.

Mrs. B. E. Nickerson received news Monday of the death of her mother, Mrs. George Tarbell, at Vancouver, B. C., where she, with her daughter, Mrs. Leslie Dickerman, went the middle of February.

The direct cause of her death was supposed to be a cancerous trouble of the stomach. Mrs. Sarah (Pratt) Tarbell was the daughter of George and Zephaniah Tarbell and was born in Braintree 64 years ago. About 41 years ago she married George Tarbell, who was a well known business man in that town and went to live in the homestead which was hers at the time of her decease, where she lived for more than 40 years. Six years ago the death of her husband occurred and since that time she has occupied the same place except about two years passed in Vancouver, B. C., and California. Deceased was survived by two daughters, Mrs. B. C. Nickerson of this village and Mrs. Leslie Dickerman with whom she was at the time of her death.

On Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. Dickerman started east with the remains and on their arrival here the funeral will be held from the home of Mrs. Nickerson and interment will be in Southview cemetery.

Mrs. John Rogers and infant son and Miss Minnie Rogers are the guests of Mrs. Charles Root for a couple of days when they will go on to Waterbury to meet Mr. Rogers who has employment there and will take up their residence there temporarily.

The King of Instruments.

Restricted as its range of dynamics, the violin has for its votaries men of such widely differing temperaments as Paganini and Spohr, Wilhelmj and Sarasate, Joachim and Ysaye. Its literature does not compare with that of the piano, for which Bach, Beethoven, Schumann, Chopin, and Brahms have written their choicest music; yet the intimate nature of the violin's capacity for passionate emotion, crowns it and not the organ, with its mechanical tonal effects—as king of instruments. Nor does the voice make the peculiarly poignant appeal of the violin. Its lowest note is the low of the trouble elf, and its top note a more squeak; but it seems in a few octaves to have imprisoned within its wooden walls a miniature world of feeling; even in the hands of a clumsy amateur it has the formidable power of giving pain; while in the grasp of a master it is capable of rousing the soul.

James Humecker, in the May Every-body's

The habeas corpus proceedings brought by Almon P. Reynolds of Hartford against Joseph Loveland for the guardianship of Eber M. Doubleday, a minor child, whose parents are deceased, and which were heard by Judge John H. Weston of the supreme court last week, were decided yesterday by an order handed down by Judge Watson, Hon. J. H. Senter of this city appeared for the plaintiff, while S. E. Pingree represented the defense. The child has been in the custody of Reynolds for over a year and has become attached to the family which has taken care of it, but Loveland, the guardian of the child, desired to place it in care of G. J. Judd of Holyoke, Mass. The order of Judge Watson denies the application for the custody of the child made by Loveland and dismisses the writ, ordering that the child be left in the custody of Reynolds and giving him the guardianship.

Middlebury and Ikt College.

It has been many a day since a subscription paper was passed around our village for the benefit of the College. In fact, so long a time has elapsed since the College was presented as an object of benevolence that many persons have grown up to whom the suggestion of a gift to the treasury of the institution sounded at first as strange as would an appeal for a contribution to the Rutland Railroad. The more we think of it, however, the more appropriate it seems that an appeal should be made for local financial support of our own College. It is well known that all education is charity. We tax ourselves to support common and high schools. Rich men and philanthropists contribute largely for the endowment of universities and colleges. The alumni of the College living in a distance expect occasionally to help out on this project or on that. Why should not the people of the community in which the institution is located, and who receive most benefit from its work, contribute also? The argument that the College brings money into the community, while undoubtedly sound, is only one of the minor considerations. The early founders of Middlebury did not expect the College to contribute to them. They proposed to give largely to the College. What they desired was convenient opportunity for higher education for their children, and that is still the best reason for good local support of the College. An added motive may be found in the program of the life of the entire surrounding region, which a higher institution of learning can not fail to further. What would Middlebury be without its College?—Middlebury Register.

The Language of the Game.

"He ambled to the A-one sack!"
"The pebble whistler soon was whiffed!"
"Umps waved the orator way back!"
"A Wilbur Wright the batter biffed!"
"Tis here again, O brothers all—
The pleasing language of base ball—
"He leaped against the hurler's stand!"
"The catcher pegged him with two feet!"
"Of bingles we were somewhat scant!"
"Such spall balls serves were hard to beat!"
Beside it classic tongues seem tame—
The language of the glorious game.

"He whanged the shy, elusive pill!"
"The garden guardian speared the sphere!"
"The bleacherites yelled, 'Oh, you Bill!'"
"Red Casey was the cushioner!"
No doubt it is—spring has the floor—
When base ball talk has bloomed once more.

NORTHFIELD

Moving Picture Establishment Is to Be Built This Summer.

Northfield is to have a moving picture theatre building in the near future. Dr. W. B. Mayo has arranged to erect such a building on East street, just west of his block for Frank J. Dutton, who has so successfully conducted the theatricum in village hall during the past year or more. The plans show a building to be 68 feet long on the inside and 20 feet wide, with stage and all modern conveniences. The structure will be built of brick one story high with a handsome front and a commodious basement. It will be known as the Pearl theatre. The excavations for the foundations have already been made and work is to begin at once and be pushed to completion.

BLACKSMITHS FORM

STATE ASSOCIATION

Delegates, Mostly from Three Counties of Vermont, Met at Burlington and Elected Officers.

Burlington, May 5.—Representatives of the blacksmith trade from different parts of Vermont, particularly from Chittenden, Franklin and Addison counties, to the number of about 150 met in Y. M. C. A. hall last evening and organized three locals to constitute a branch of the Master Horse Shoers' National Protective association. National Organizer J. D. Pfeiffer of Norwich, Ct., was in attendance.

The three locals organized and their officers are as follows: Burlington local, president, Harry Raymond of Burlington; vice-president, John Collins of Burlington; financial secretary, L. P. Carpenter of Essex; treasurer, V. L. Clark of Burlington; doorkeeper, O. F. Gay of South Burlington.

Franklin county local, president, J. A. Duffey of East Georgia; vice-president, L. L. Judd of East Georgia; secretary, E. M. Mitchell of Enosburg Falls; treasurer, L. J. Patterson of St. Albans; doorkeeper, Edward Suprenant of St. Albans.

Addison county local, president, E. E. Hickey of Bristol; vice-president, L. L. Dwyer of Bristol; financial secretary, F. P. McIntyre of Bristol; treasurer, H. E. Boddette of Addison; corresponding secretary, John Niseneaux of Vergennes.

J. A. Coburn of St. Albans was appointed by the national association as state organizer. Steps will be taken at once to increase the membership and influence of the organization. George P. Whalen of Burlington and Charles Reamer of Seymour, Conn., acted as secretaries of the meeting. Following the organization of the three locals, the officers were installed by National Organizer Pfeiffer.

A meeting of the blacksmiths was held in the afternoon, when arrangements preliminary to the organization were discussed and carried out. J. A. Coburn of St. Albans presided. The address of welcome was delivered by Mayor James E. Burke and remarks were also made by ex-Mayor H. S. Peck, National Organizer Pfeiffer, Frank Peen of Providence, R. I., J. H. Grew of Hartford, Conn., and James F. Whalen of Burlington.

The delegates were entertained at dinner last evening at the Hotel Burlington as guests of the Strong Hardware company of this city, and representatives of other houses furnishing horsehoes' supplies.

Unpatriotic Thoughtless ness.

Some of the rising generation of St. Albans, Vt., who have paid too little attention to the history of their country, have extended an invitation to Gen. Bennett H. Young, of Louisville, Ky., to add to the interest of the celebration of the tercentenary of the discovery of Lake Ontario, 1761.

Champlain, July 5th, by giving a replica of the raid which he made upon the village in 1804, when with a posse of men, he crossed from Canada, terrorized the country, robbed the banks and carried off some $200,000 in gold greenbacks. The program is for a band representing the raiders, to come in from Canada at 3 o'clock and be reviewed by Gen. Young, who is also set down as one of the orators of the occasion. Naturally, this proposition raises a vehement protest from the Vermont veterans, who see the distinct difference between Young's raid and the regular operations of the Confederate army. Young's raid was like that of the Younger brothers, Quantrell and others, not a military operation in any sense, but a marauding expedition for private benefit. It contributed nothing whatever to the success of the Confederate armies, and was not authorized as a military operation. It could not have had any military end in view, and therefore was simply brigandage, such as is severely reprimanded and punished by the military authorities on both sides. If the misguided young people would study the history of the war a little, they would understand the wide distance there is between military operations and brigandage and murder which are committed by private parties taking advantage of the state of war. Mr. Young's performance was no more an act of war than a hold-up of a passenger train on a Western railroad is an act of Government regulation. Had Mr. Young been captured he would have been very properly shot as a brigand. The ill-informed people who extended the invitation should lose no time in canceling such an act of the worst of a bad last.—New York Exchange.
